The Society of Friends
of the National Army Museum

There has never been a more exciting time to be involved with the National Army Museum as a Friend. The Museum is embarking upon an ambitious programme of development that will see its galleries transformed over the next few years. We need your help to achieve our vision.

We are a Society run for and by people who choose to demonstrate their support for the purpose and work of the National Army Museum. Every year, the objects that our funds are used to purchase help the Museum generate a wider interest in, and understanding of, the history of Britain's army, and its relevance to the world that we live in today.

We aim to

- increase awareness and appreciation of the National Army Museum
- raise funds to help the Museum purchase important artefacts

The Society of Friends

“The Friends’ importance to this Museum does not rest solely on their generous donations. To us, they represent a body of enthusiastic and loyal supporters who are able to act as the Museum’s ambassadors to the rest of the world, endorse and broadcast the work we do, and help us to generate more supporters like them. It is this support that will be invaluable to us as we move forward in 2006 with our ambitious development plan.”

Dr Alan Guy, Director, National Army Museum
